Northwestern State University
Director of University Libraries and Associate Professor

Greetings! I'm the Director of University Libraries and Associate Professor at Northwestern State University! I'm a recent doctoral graduate from the Higher Education Administration program at Ole Miss and serve as an adjunct in the School of Education at NSU. My research interests range from emotional intelligence to workplace issues in libraries and AOER. As a former instructional librarian, I am still very interested in information (and digital) literacy. Because of my experiences in higher education and the impact of my doctoral student experience, I've grown more aware of the chronic issues plaguing higher education and want to help identify solutions. On a more personal level, I'm happily married to my college sweetheart, with whom I enjoy having adventures! {{she/her/hers}}
